

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. In a connector that is stabbed through a slot in a main beam in a suspended ceiling grid to lock with an opposing identical connector already in the slot, and that has a cantilevered leaf spring locking latch that is integral with and pivoted that extends from a base in the connector;

the improvement comprising ~~pivoting the~~ a locking latch that extends from the base in an arc, and that flexes along the arc.